

Adaptation Measures for Physical Climate Risk

- In anticipation of operational disruptions caused by disasters such as heavy rainfall and typhoons, we assess all company-operated sites based on factors including hazard maps, elevation, and past disaster records, and formulate appropriate plans. Based on the current assessments, the risk of operational shutdowns is considered low
- We are promoting the expansion of a work-from-home business model and accumulating operational expertise that does not rely on company-operated sites in preparation for unforeseen events and emergencies